Dr. Birkett Now Ranks As Colonel

Several Important Announcements Regarding No. 3 General Hospital Are Made.

Several important announcements in connection with the McGill General Hospital, its training and date of departure were made last evening by Colonel Birkett, O. C. the unit. Dr. Birkett has been promoted to the rank of Colonel commanding the Hospital, which has been enlarged to 1040 beds, with a personnel consisting of thirty-six officers, including two dentists. These appointments have all been made and the ranks are now filled. Only the very best of several hundred student applicants are being taken; the best both physically and technically. The students from the five years in Medicine have been sworn in and have received their uniforms.

On Tuesday, April 6, the men will go into barracks at No. 5 Mansfield street, now known as St. George's Immigration Home. Everything is now in readiness to receive the men and officers who will sleep and eat in the barracks.

It is the Duke of Connaught will inspect the unit some time during the week of April 14th. Provided the weather is favorable and the grounds are in condition, the inspection will take place on the campus.

The students of the Medical unit will be granted leave of absence from Thursday the 1st to Thursday the 6th. The examinations for the Medical unit will begin April 6 and will continue until the following week.

Convocation will be held immediately afterwards.

It is rumored that the unit will leave for France about April 20, its ultimate destination being said to be Boulogne, where preparations are being made to receive five similar units. These combined units will furnish six thousand beds.

The nurses, seventy-three in number, including the matron, are all in readiness.

The following donations have been received:

Thirteen Men at Annual Meeting of "Lit" Society

Ways and means of securing a quorum at meetings of the Society has been a problem which the executive of the Literary and Debating Society has found itself faced with more than once during the session, and seems just chance that a quorum was obtained at the annual meeting of the Society held in Strathcona Hall on the 19th inst. As it was, the quorum was broken during the meeting, and the latter was unable to be adjourned. In theory it is still in progress.

After the minutes of the previous annual meeting had been read by the retiring secretary, P. S. Fisher, the election of officers for the ensuing term was proceeded with. This resulted in the return of the following:

Hon. president, Dr. Stephen Leacock, President--A. G. Dewey, Law '17.
Vice-president--Philip S. Fisher, Arts '16.

Secretary--J. C. Farthing, Arts '18.
Asst.-Secretary--T. W. L. Macdonald, Arts '17.

Treasurer--H. R. Morgan, Arts '17.
I. U. D. representative--C. J. Tidmarsh, Arts '16.

Advisory Committee--Dr. C. J. Macmillan, A. W. Latham, Dr. W. D. Tait, M. O'Halloran, Arts '15; B. Bernstein, Arts '15; G. F. Dewey.

C. T. Oughtred, retiring president reported upon the affairs of the Society this year, paying particular attention to the reasons for the inability to hold the Mock Parliament. The executive, he said, had absolutely nothing to do with the operation of the Mock Parliament, but simply had as its duty the question of seeing if it was the desire of the Student Body to have it held. After discussion, in which B. A. Schwartz took a leading part, the meeting dispersed. Mr. Schwartz expressed himself strongly in favor of the operation of the Mock Parliament being put in the hands of the executive of the "Lit" and also suggested that the Canadian Club and the Literary and Debating Society be amalgamated.

USE OF UNION IS GRANTED TO OVERSEAS CO'Y

The first meeting of the newly-elected House Committee was held on the 24th instant at the Union. Purely routine business occupied the attention of the House Committee, which is now composed of the following:--J. M. Willacott, president; R. C. MacLachlan, vice-president; D. A. McDonald, secretary; C. C. Stewart, billiards representative; Science representative, Allan Clarke, D. G. Dunbar, Medicine representative, J. D. Moore, L. M. Mathews; Law representative, A. M. Langlois; Arts representative, F. P. Banfield, W. H. Aird, W. H. Aird was appointed reading room representative. Messrs. Aird and Banfield were elected on March 18.

A special joint meeting of the House Committee and Advisory Board was held on the 22nd. The full privileges of the Union were extended to the Overseas Company, the top floor of the building being given over for sleeping quarters and the use of the dining hall for meals, all subject to the approval of the governors of the University.

Successful Season For Orchestra

Held Concerts at R. V. C. and Macdonald College Last Week

The close of an unusually successful season for the Students' Orchestra of McGill University has taken place. And this, be it said, notwithstanding an entire lack of interest on the part of the student body at large.

On Wednesday evening last, the Orchestra provided a concert of entirely unexpected calibre at the R. V. C. A well balanced and carefully rehearsed body of nearly thirty musicians rendered a well-selected programme of over two hours' duration, before an audience of approximately 100 people, nine-tenths of whom were outsiders. The same programme, with minor alterations, was given at Macdonald College on Saturday evening, before a wildly enthusiastic audience of over four hundred.

The few who attended the concert on Wednesday evening were delighted. All the soloists were well received. Special mention must be made of the soprano solos, by Miss Thom, and the brilliant violin work, by Mr. Presner. Both of these are newcomers to McGill audiences.

All of the city critics favourably reviewed the painstaking work of the Orchestra and its assistants. Several members of the staff of the McGill Conservatorium of Music were kind enough to express their unqualified approval.

At Macdonald College the verdict was the same. There the outstanding feature was the captivating soprano work of Master Herbert Race. Dr. Harrison said in reviewing the concert that it was seldom that a cathedral boy was to be heard at all in Canada, and that one with a splendid, well modulated voice, and a musical feeling. The Orchestra, by the way, was entertained at a daintily prepared supper after the concert at Macdonald College.

After the concert on Wednesday evening the Orchestra was asked to remain for a flashlight picture. While the photographers were getting ready, a business meeting was held, at which Messrs. Presner and Grigg were elected leader and manager for next year.

Western Club Returns Its New Officers

At a meeting of the Western Club, held at the Hall on Tuesday, March 23rd, Dr. Howard T. Barnes was unanimously chosen as Honorary President of the club for next year and J. Dean Robinson, Med. '17, as the new President. Other officers elected were: Vice-pres--J. K. Gordon, Arts '16. Secretary-treasurer--A. T. Bone, Sci. '16. Asst.-Sec.--R. S. O'Meara, Arts '17. W. J. Schrage, Med. '18. Committee--F. P. Banfield, Arts '17. Manitoba: H. M. Young, Med. '19. Saskatchewan: V. S. Green, Arts '18. Alberta: A. E. Beckwith, Arts '17. British Columbia.

A hearty vote of thanks to the retiring President, H. B. McKewen, and the executive of the past year, for their untiring interest, and support of the society, was moved by H. W. Miller, and seconded by R. S. Perry.

The report for the session presented to the meeting by the Secretary-Treasurer, J. E. Affleck, shows that the club has had a good year, the meetings being well attended and all of a very interesting character. The financial statement indicates a surplus of fifty cents.

Councillors Are Called "Autocrats"

Charges Made Against Council at Meeting of Arts Undergrad. Society

A lively interest in matters affecting the welfare of the Arts Undergraduate Society was remarked at the special meeting of the Society held in room 5, Arts Building, on Monday last at 12 o'clock. The inauguration of the newly elected president, C. R. MacKenzie; the decision to ask the Faculty to close lectures on April 9; and a somewhat prolonged debate upon the advisability or inadvisability of allowing the Arts representative in the Students Council to sit upon the executive of the Undergraduate Society ex-officio, were the features of the meeting.

Following the reading of the minutes by the secretary, J. C. Farthing, P. P. Hutchison, vice-president of the Society, called upon the new president, Mr. MacKenzie, to take the chair. Mr. MacKenzie, in a few words, expressed his appreciation of the honour which had been paid to him by his fellow students, and trusted that his administration, which would be conducted to the best of his ability, would meet with the approval of members of the Society.

The first business of the meeting as presented by Mr. MacKenzie, was the proposal to ask the Faculty to stop lectures on April 9 instead of April 13, in order to allow two weeks' time for preparation for the examination. A recommendation favoring this proposal was sent to the Faculty, not a voice being heard contrary to the motion.

Mr. MacKenzie called upon C. J. Tidmarsh, Arts representative in the Students' Council, to address the Society upon the proposal to have the Undergraduate Society executive ex-officio. After Mr. Tidmarsh had been outlined by Mr. Tidmarsh, who said that its purpose was simply to allow the Council an opportunity of gaining a closer knowledge of matters in the Society, opposition to the entire scheme was voiced by Mr. Oliver, M. O'Halloran and others. Mr. Oliver, in a vigorous speech declared that the Students' Council was simply endeavoring to usurp further power, and saw no reason why the proposal should go through. Mr. Oliver declared himself against the "closed doors" sessions of the Council and voiced strong disapproval of its methods in general, at one point stamping its members as "autocrats." He gave one instance happening two years ago, where information which would have been of the utmost importance to the Student Body had been withheld through the system by which meetings of the Council are held. Mr. O'Halloran and Mr. Yeo followed in the same strain, the latter declaring that he saw no reason why the Arts Undergraduate Society should not hold secret meetings as well as the Students' Council.

The Council found a strong supporter in C. T. Oughtred, although the general attitude of the meeting was hostile to the Council. Mr. Oughtred expressed himself as being in sympathy with the proposition. Upon the matter being put to a show of hands, it was found that a resolution in favour of the scheme, moved by Mr. Oughtred, had been defeated by a vote of 29-28. A motion demanding a recount was defeated 28-24.

Sleuth Used In Classroom by Professor

"There's nothing new under the sun," is an old saying, but a professor of the Department of Railways, proved that this was not true, at any rate so far as McGill is concerned, a few days ago, when he introduced a private detective into the classroom in an effort to discover what students had been creating a disturbance during his lectures. The professor in question has been put for some time past to no little inconvenience by disturbances going on in the class of Third Year Civil Engineering while his attention was otherwise employed. Determined to find out who were the ring-leaders in the affair, he procured a private detective from a detective agency and furnishing him with a seating plan of the room, placed him in a rear seat. On the class so large, the presence of the private detective was not noticed until a greater part of the period had passed, when the seating plan lying before the stranger and the fact that he was taking notes concerning the behavior of members of the class was remarked. Nothing was said until the class was dismissed when members of the class waited outside the door until the detective had arisen to leave. His seating plan and notes were taken from him and an explanation demanded. The detective readily admitted that he had been hired by the presiding lecturer for the purpose of endeavoring to find out the behavior of members of the class. The Daily learns that Dean Adams addressed the class on Wednesday last, and that all once more reigns in peace as far as it is concerned.

READ IN TORONTO

Professor Leacock repeated his reading yesterday in Toronto. He gave it at the request of the Franco-British Aid Society. The total receipts will be given as in the case of all previous lectures, in aid of the refugees and sufferers of the Belgian nation.

This is the first time that Professor Leacock has appeared in Toronto, and the public of that highly intellectual city had a chance of helping on the most worthy of causes and at the same time listening to a human laugh machine which makes even the staidest Torontonians laugh.

McGill Has a Regiment

Some of us at McGill have become accustomed to consider, with some degree of complacency, that we have not done so badly in our endeavor to perform a duty towards mankind and civilization. It is true that our regiment has not done badly, that the Overseas Company will be a splendid body of men, and that the McGill General Hospital will be the finest thing of its sort that any University has ever conceived. But, in spite of this, McGill has fallen far short of the sacrifice which the occasion must receive, if the cause which McGill has at heart is to emerge successful from the struggle in which the University is engaged.

McGill is far from the war and inevitably it is not so real and urgent in its appeal to those on this side of the Atlantic as it is to those in Great Britain. Oxford University is playing its part in the great public struggle with really fine unselfishness and devotion. Especially heavy is the sacrifice which is demanded from the younger generation of University men, and they have responded nobly. Of more than four thousand students only eight hundred remain at Oxford, and of these a considerable percentage are men from the United States and from other neutral countries. Practically all of the Junior staff of the University have gone; they have laid aside the ambitions and careers of their whole life-time in order to assume military or naval service. Oxford is like a camp—the remaining students also are in military training. There is also a corps of veterans—not too old to be of use. It is a grand sight to see the grey-headed but well-preserved Poet-Laureate and the grey-bearded and bald-headed professors of Greek and History lying on their stomachs practicing an attack with their rifles, or hard at work digging trenches.

"He who deserves the palm will wear it."

Dr. George E. Armstrong on "Surgery in Modern Warfare"

A meeting of the Medical Society, held last Friday night, was attended with the usual success.

The financial report of the Medical Society, given by the treasurer, L. J. Hartman, showed a net balance of $1,000.00, a financial statement considerably above expectations. This amount was toward the buying of a McGill shield as a souvenir to Dr. Barlow, Johns Hopkins University, who was the guest of honor at the Dinner. The next item of business was a report brought forward by H. J. Connelley, the financial committee. In a few remarks he stated that the Society had a balance of over $800 to its credit, and moved that a donation of $250 be made to No. 3 General Hospital. This motion was carried.

The President then introduced the speaker of the evening, Dr. G. E. Armstrong, the Honorary President of the Society. Dr. Armstrong is the head surgeon of the Royal Victoria Hospital and last year was elected President of the American Surgical Association, one of the highest honors attainable for a surgeon on this Continent.

In a few preliminary remarks the eminent surgeon expressed his regret for being unable to attend the previous meetings. The theme of his address was "Surgery in Modern Warfare." Has the art and science of surgery kept pace with the art and science of warfare? To do this he reviewed the medical service in the army from the Roman Period up to the present time. It was not till the Russo-Japanese War that the army medical officers were given a free hand, thus reducing the death-rate by their increased authority. Formerly over 50 per cent. of the wounded died, but now the percentage was reduced to five per cent. In the Crimean War the wounded were put alongside those with infectious diseases and consequently more died from contracted disease than from their wounds. In the Boer War, of the number of wounded that died, two-thirds died not from their wounds alone, but from the complications which set in. But now the medical corps has not only reduced death from wounds and surgery, but it has also raised the morality of the soldier by giving him hope and confidence, which qualities contribute considerably to efficiency. This sanitary science, preventative medicine and surgery in warfare has increased to such an extent that now less than five per cent. of the wounded die.

A hearty vote of thanks was moved to Dr. Armstrong for his interesting and eloquent address. L. J. Hartman, the piano and John A. O'Regan on the violin favored the meeting with a duet which was much appreciated. The four candidates for the Presidency of the Society for next year were called upon to give short addresses, each outlining briefly what he would do if elected. A motion was passed to the effect that nominations for the office of treasurer close April 30th. Refreshments were then served, after which a couple of reports followed, bringing the meeting to a close.

The meetings of the society this season have been a decided success and great credit is due to the retiring president, J. J. Knoll, and his executive. The annual meeting will be held on Friday, April 9, at which the various reports will be read and the election will take place. This will be a very important meeting and it is hoped that as many medical undergraduates as possible will turn out.

Railway Club Pays Visit to Hochelaga Power Station

The Hochelaga Power Station was the place chosen for the last trip of the Railway Club this year, and indeed it proved to be one of the most interesting of all the trips.

The Club were first shown the enormous 30,000 h. p. vertical engines delivering power of 2500 kilowatt generators and also in comparison the turbines and also the size of a cylinder of one vertical engine delivering power also to 2500 kilowatt generators. They then proceeded to the Condenser Room examining the large 30 ft. Barometric Condensers, after which they proceeded to the Boiler Room, where, perhaps the most instructive period of the trip was spent. The coal required for the boilers is handled entirely by a mechanical method known as the Con-

Professor Leacock Delights a Large Audience of Montrealers

Prof. Leacock made his first Montreal appearance in the flesh as an amuser of the public on Monday evening last, when he gave three readings from his own works in Windsor Hall. The Leacock Readings, and their object, direct and eventual, continue to gain support and popularity wherever they are given. By sending the audiences which attend them into fits of laughter, and in the doing so extracting the admission fee, the laudable object of the Belgian Relief Fund, to aid which the Readings are being given, is furthered.

The chairman of the evening, Mr. Clarence I. de Sola, consul for Belgium, introduced the reader, referring to the need of the Belgian people for help and expressing gratitude for Prof. Leacock's offer to read.

Dr. Leacock drew a laugh at the very start when he complained of the necessity of his living under the disguise of a Professor of Economics, afterwards recalling the last time he had made a speech in Montreal, for or against or cross-wise. Reciprocity, he did not exactly know which. At any rate his ambition had always been to get an audience under his power, and always his efforts had been defeated by too wily secretaries of his. Now, however, he had his chance, and he intended to read to them the whole of a novel, a play, and at least one political speech. Members of the audience wishing to leave at midnight, could go out quietly.

"Spook" was the first reading. A skit on the modern novel with its more ridiculous points brought into the bright light of humor, it earned repeated rounds of laughter. In spite of the warning given by the author beforehand that it resembled the modern novel even to the fine point of falling to have any interest whatever. Vere de Vere, under the pseudonym of a multi-millionaire, which incognito the hero travelled, was a vacant English Lord, who was far more humorous as pictured in "Spook" than we usually see his like in real life. His inquiries into the psychology of a multi-millionaire, the resemblance of the Bergsonian illusions to mere nothingness, and the reference to the buying of tickets for the theatre by Mr. Overgold, raised laughter, but "half-fogged, or half not at all," not extremely loud indeed.

"Spook" finished in a blaze of nonsense, young de Vere cloping with the multi-millionaire's wife, with all the secrecy to be had when half the establishment of faithful sixth undergrounders, third housemaids, etc., tagging behind.

"BEHIND THE BEYOND"

"Behind the Beyond," the famous problem play, was Dr. Leacock's next reading. This is more familiar because the book has been published in this country. The play for various reasons, said the reader, could not be staged. Numbers of theatre managers, after studying it carefully, had declared that there was no theatre which could have a proper stage, no fit scenery could be obtained, and most important of all, no audience small enough could be provided.

After this reading Prof. Leacock in a more serious vein delivered a short, vigorous, and most stirring eulogy of little Belgium, the country which, headed by a king who is a type of man that the world may well be proud of, has shown the world that there is no injustice, no cruelty and no depth of brutality which cannot be overcome by steadfast bravery in the face of all trials. If we wanted, by any chance, to change our nationality from that of Britain, second only to the Union Jack would we at once pick the red, yellow and black of Belgium.

LITTLE BELGIUM.
Although there were some terribly pathetic features at the outbreak of war when it seemed that all religion, even all civilization, was breaking down in ruin, yet too, there were spots which are cheering. When we see the way in which politics are being purified and hearts are being softened, we can well believe that we are passing on to a better and a finer era; all the brighter in contrast with the present gloom.

Dr. Leacock concluded by reading curious cutting from the London Times of 1916, headed "Parliamentary Procedure." There is to be a renewal of the Home Rule debate in the House of Commons. Mr. Asquith says that now the rest of the world was again at peace, the time was ripe to turn to Ireland. The Kaiser has safe in a new cage and he and the mad Crown Prince were being trained to eat out of their keeper's hands without snapping.

"The Home Rule Bill, gentlemen," is answered with shouts of "Cut it Out." "What is it?" Mr. Asquith replies with a hum—that he has forgotten his papers but Mr. Lloyd George would be able to explain Home Rule. The Chancellor yawns and says he is tired, having just returned from inspecting the new military training camp in an aeroplane, and he had dropped the Home Rule Bill, the Welsh Bill, etc., into the sea. He does not care about Home Rule any longer.

THE COMMONS IN 1916.
The cutting too reports the most unheard of relations between Sir Edward Carson and Mr. John Redmond. One says, "After you John," and the other demurs with a "By no means, my dear Edward." But they both agree that Home Rule is a side issue unnecessary and of no consequence.

You can't separate the men of Tipperary from the men of Dublin. Too much Irish and English blood has been mingled on the plains of France in a righteous cause to separate them. Mister McLuskey rises and reminds the ladies and forget Scotland. Although speaking financially they might be at loss to Scotland yet they wouldn't care. Some one strikes up Trelawney, and then Rule Britannia booms through the House.

Finally, Asquith moves that the House leave three of the youngest members to look after the drafting of the Home Rule Bill, because they could not make a mistake whatever they did, and go see a remarkably fine moving picture nearby of the Allies entering Berlin. And they leave singing, "It's a Long, Long Way to Tipperary."

YOUNG MEN'S FASHIONS

Some of the New Styles
Favored by Younger Men

In the Semi-Ready Special and also in the Fashion Portfolio there is shown the photograph of Style 500, which will be very popular with young men. It is pictured in a neat check, but the design is reproduced in many other patterns.

The coat is made in different lengths to suit every height. The body is shapely, with shoulders and sleeves of medium width and the general effect is pleasing and attractive. The notches of collar and lapel are angular, and the front is made with soft roll and slight cutaway. The vest buttons high, and shows one button when the coat is buttoned up. The trousers for this season for an average man have a 19-inch knee and 16-inch bottom, are of medium width over the hip and, when so desired, the turn-up should be two and a half inches.

"The Marlin" is a smart three-button sack suit, slightly form-fitting, with lapels liberal in width and collar and lapel notch square or slightly rounded. The pockets are all patched, and the front closes with three buttons and is moderately cut away.

"The Savoy" is a double-breasted type which will make a fine navy blue outing suit, with white serge trousers for the afternoon or evening at the lake or seaside.

Good Clothes Cost Less To-Day Than 20 Years Ago

"The purchasing power of a dollar is just about half what it was twenty years ago," said a prominent industrial director, "but I bought yesterday in a Semi-Ready store for $25 a grey worsted pick-and-pick weave which is exact in texture and wool quality to what I paid a custom tailor $35 for in 1895. I know, for I have both suits to-day for face to face comparison."

The proprietors of the Semi-Ready tailoring idea started in 1895 to effect that saving by efficiency methods in hand-tailoring and by wholesale methods of manufacturing and distribution.

Every principle of economy was studied, even to the showing of samples to the merchants throughout the country. A Semi-Ready traveller carries his designs and patterns on a close schedule, staying but a day in a town.

Each year has shown some substantial progress in the reduction of cost and in the uplift of quality. Most of the cloth patterns shown in the Semi-Ready fashions are woven to order from imported wool yarns bought in England by the resident executive. Savings of as much as $1 a suit have been effected in one year, and the Britonsloom serge suit at $25 is to-day equal in value to many a $35 quality.

Even the ready-made clothiers improved the quality of their cloth to meet their customers, and the "over-flow demand" for something better. So that Semi-Ready can claim credit for an uplift in the whole clothing trade of Canada.

The "price in the pocket" is another important factor. It is like the published price list of the stock and grain exchanges, for it prevents any extortionate demands above the standard value.

In the face of advancing costs in wages, material, rents and all incidentals of trade, a suit of Semi-Ready clothes to-day costs 25 per cent. less than the same quality of tailoring cost twenty years ago. That is something accomplished in one line of industry.

CORPULENT MEN CAN HAVE GOOD FIGURE

A corpulent man should not wear a large check pattern---that much everybody knows. The man who studies dress can make the "apparent" corpulency of the average man look from two to four inches less than in chest measurement.

The stout man should dress in neat small patterns, or pin stripes. He need not necessarily garb himself in the sombre splendour of dark clothes, for there are greys and light greys which will give the same slim and trim effect as a pin stripe in navy blue or black goods.

In the Semi-Ready designs this season there is a Type F, with the front so small that the upper button can be buttoned only and the cutaway starts right from the upper button down, with the view of taking off all surplus goods not needed in the summer months. The lapels are angular and of normal width and length, with a soft roll. Shoulders and sleeves are of moderate width, and the seams are plain. The vest is, of course, concaved in proportion to the exact height and weight of the figure for which the coat is made.

The thoroughly competent artisan finds no obstacles which cannot readily be overcome, and the physique type system in the Semi-Ready tailoring enables the salesman and tailor to fit the man who is usually hard to fit.

Types F and G, garments, for big men, do not cost more than the average types unless the breast measurement is over 44 inches.

FIVE PER CENT WAR TAX

What it Adds to the Cost of a Suit of Clothes

Should you buy a suit this year from cloth imported since Feb. 12, you will pay from eighteen to sixty cents towards the cost of helping the mother country. The war tax on British woollens is five per cent, and cloth costs from four to twelve shillings a yard. On three-dollar material the total war duties on a suit length would be fifty-seven and a half cents.

On the Semi-Ready clothes for this summer this tax will not be felt, as all the cloth for the Spring and Summer seasons was ordered last fall, and the garments were being tailored in January and February. With the duties on other materials imported for high-class suitings the added cost on a good suit of clothes will average about a dollar.

This cost will be hard to absorb where clothes are tailored to a standard of value, with the "price in the pocket," as is the case with genuine Semi-Ready tailoring.

THE SEMI-READY SPECIAL

There is published weekly in Montreal a neat little newspaper which is devoted to men's fashions and the methods of modern wholesale tailoring.

Each season this journal attains to a circulation of nearly a quarter of a million, as it is mailed to many thousands of customers in each town and city where Semi-Ready tailoring is sold. The new spring style number of the Semi-Ready Special contains photographic reproductions of the latest designs from the Chief Designer's studio. These are not fanciful fashion plates, but are the exact clothes photographed on a prominent merchant in Montreal.

STYLES FOR MEN

(By an Authority.)

Fashions have changed in many ways since the early days when eccentricity in dress was a sign of the "dandy." Beau Brummel, who was the supreme dictator of fashion a century ago, is said to have made the Prince Regent weep when he disapproved of the cut of the royal coat. But to-day Beau would himself be laughed at.

A violation of the artistic principle in dress is tabooed by the leaders of fashion, and the noisy or loudly dressed man is pitied rather than admired. The well-dressed man of to-day wears clothes that are subdued, refined and sane in expression. There is an entire absence of freakishness.

The Semi-Ready system of wholesale custom tailoring has exercised a powerful tendency towards the adoption of comfort and conservatism in dress, with the richness and softness in the weave and the wool.

There are changes in styles each season, but these variations are usually a gradual evolution of style, and are stamped with the undefinable quality of good taste.

It is the young business man of to-day who puts the stamp of approval upon the creative product of the designer---his energy, keen critical ability and alert decision give instant judgment. Seldom does this innate instinct go astray.

In fabrics the green and grey combinations will be the dominating colors for the season and all the new patterns and shades are quiet and yet smart.

The cutaway frock, or as it has been more generally called, the English morning coat, will displace the ordinary frock. And there is a likelihood that the cutaway will grow more in favor for office men and professional men.

Yet the sack coat this season is shown in such a variety of attractive lapels and of shapely fronts that it will be the choice of the multitude. Coats, such as "The Marlin," with the neat square cut broad lapels and patch pockets, will be in vogue. The coat will be looser this year, with less tendency towards the tight form-fitting design. A three-button sack, with roll lapel of medium length, slightly rounded or quite square in the notch, will be a strong favorite. The waistcoat will have no collar and will show one button above the coat.

Double-breasted sack coats, like "The Savoy," a design of the Semi-Ready tailors, will have three buttons, but with a roll lapel so that only two buttons should be closed.

A smart golfing or outing suit will be the yoked Norfolk, with an envelope seam across each shoulder to allow full freedom of muscular activity. For seaside and holiday dress the English white serge and garbords will be worn, sometimes with coat of the same material or with an unlined Norfolk of homespun or Scotch tweed.

Many fashion writers herald the return to favor of the fancy waistcoat, to be worn chiefly with the morning coat, but the fancy waistcoat is always an ephemeral taste. One soon tires of it.

The liberal width of the coat lapels as shown in all the new models of the Semi-Ready designs is one of the marked features of the season.

"The Marlin"

- ¶ This is a new design in Semi-Ready Tailoring---quite popular, too.
- ¶ Note the neat patch pockets---
- ¶ New styles, to gain favor, must have the artistic expression which will grow upon you---and that is what we try to produce in Semi-Ready Tailoring.
- ¶ This is "The Marlin."

"The Newport Slip-on"

- ¶ A Spring Top Coat made with the deep-scy, similar to the Bal-macraan, but neater, dressier, smarter, with or without Velvet Collar, yoke and sleeves lined only, and all steams taped.
- ¶ The shoulder is narrow and cut to meet the seam of the top side sleeve---the newest in Spring Top Coats---in Tweeds only.

"D" Company of 38th Will Go to Camp With The McGill Battalion

Arrangements have been made in order that members of the Battalion desiring to proceed to their homes directly from the Spring Camp at Niagara may do so and will be allowed free transportation for railway mileage equivalent to the return journey of the Battalion from Niagara on the Lake to Montreal. Members desiring this privilege must hand in their names and particulars to the adjutant not later than April 15th, 1915. Personal baggage and civilian clothes will not be allowed in Camp, according to orders issued by the McGill Regimental authorities, and must be shipped to Niagara-on-the-Lake or elsewhere at owner's own expense. Members proceeding to their homes direct from camp must have their civilian clothes available and turn in to the Quartermaster all Battalion equipment and clothing.

The McGill Overseas Company, or more correctly, "D" Company of the 38th Battalion, will attend the Spring Camp with the McGill Regiment unless Lt.-Col. C. M. Edwards, officer commanding the 38th Battalion, receives orders to the contrary from Militia headquarters. It is expected that the convocation ceremonies will be put back, but falling this all members of the regiment at camp that must of necessity be present at these exercises will be allowed to come back to Montreal to attend them.

Major Magee is at present in Toronto obtaining full information as to the McGill Camp, and it is advisable that all members watch the orders next issued very closely for particulars. During the period the regiment is at camp the Angus Cup will be competed for and awarded to the best company, while the Burland Shield will be given to the best platoon. The Angus Cup can be seen in the adjutant's room at any time by any member of the Battalion upon request. The syllabus below has been outlined by the regimental authorities as likely to be carried into effect as the daily programme of instruction, although it has not yet been approved of by the Militia Department, but the syllabus adopted will be on somewhat similar lines to suit conditions, as the one published below:

SCHOLARSHIP POOR IN BIG ROOMING HOUSES.

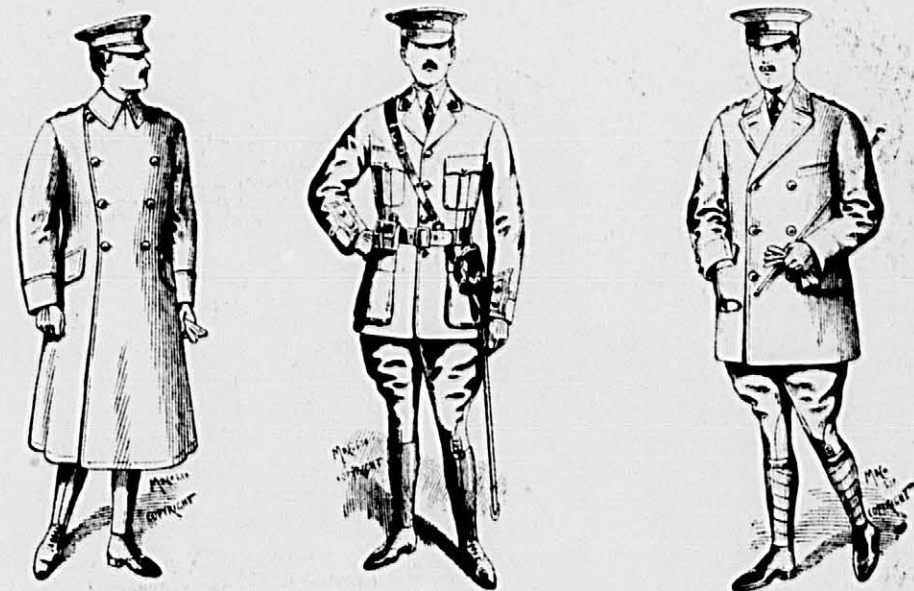

In the University of Illinois scholarship in eleven out of the twenty-two largest rooming houses in Champaign is below the general average this semester. Assistant Dean Warnock has just computed the scholastic report for the student rooming houses in the two towns where the number of roomers exceeded twelve.
The twenty-two houses made an average of 80.23. The approximate university average is 81. The house which occupies the lowest place on the list is the only one which has no native-born living in the house and has no form of government for the roomers.

The highest general average was 84.38, made by a rooming house on East Springfield avenue, Champaign. The lowest grade computed was 75.19. It is very difficult, Mr. Warnock states, to secure figures which are fair, because the occupants in the larger rooming houses of the Twin Cities change from month to month. For this reason the addresses and grades are not published.

Sunday morning, March 21st, the first church parade of the McGill Battalion was held. The men fell in at 10.15 a.m. on Burnside Place, at 10.30 headed by the band of the regiment, moved off up Stanley, along Sherbrooke street and down Union avenue. At Dorchester street the Roman Catholics, under Lieut. Mann, broke off and attended Mass at St. Patrick's church. Father McShane making special reference to the presence of the soldiers.

The larger part of the Battalion, under Lt.-Col. Robert Starke, proceeded down Beaver Hall Hill to St. Andrew's Church of Scotland. The men entered by the Belmont street entrance. Opposite the door a large "McGill" banner had been hung. The pupils were draped with Union Jacks and the Scotch Irish and Canadian flags. Red and white flowers were also placed on either side of the pulpit. The music, which was of a special character to suit the occasion, was rendered by a large choir of boys, who joined heartily in the familiar hymns.

The sermon by the Pastor, the Reverend George Duncan, M.A., B.D., was on the text, "Who shall lead the battle? Thou?" After the Benediction, the National Anthem was sung, all standing at attention.

The return march was along Dorchester, up Mountain street and along Sherbrooke street, to the College grounds and dismissal took place on the large Campus.

Lt.-Col. Birkett and the officers of the McGill General Hospital were present, but the students not having uniforms did not turn out.

The marching was very hard on the way to church, the streets being covered with slush, but in spite of the difficulties the men made a splendid showing.

HONOR SYSTEM FOR U. OF MINNESOTA

Whether or not the University of Minnesota is to be completely under the honor system will be decided by those colleges not now using the system at the election of March 19th. At this time the following colleges will adopt or reject the system in the form it is presented to them: Medicine, Engineering, Mines, Agriculture, Dentistry, Chemistry and Pharmacy.

Whether or not the system will be revised, depends upon the committee of the All-University Council which is in charge of honor system extension. Present indications show that the present draft of the system as drawn up by the joint committee of students and faculty is most satisfactory.

Duke Inspects City Regiments

A record number of men answered the roll call on Burnside Place at 2.15 p.m. on Tuesday, March 23rd. With the band in the lead the route followed was via Burnside Place, University and Milton streets and Park Avenue.

Park Avenue was well crowded with cabs and automobiles when the march into Fletcher's Field was made, the regiment entering from the south side. Words fail to describe the condition of the fields, the snow and water lying in places three and four inches deep and in lots of places the men were standing in water over their boot-tops. The men put up with this discomfort in an admirable manner, but it would have helped out if there had been a few Germans at hand to stand on.

The McGill band, along with the others, took up its position in the rear of the marching music through the inspection.

There was such a large turn-out of the regiments that H. R. H. the Duke did not inspect all the company but just the leading lines of each regiment. H. R. H. entered the field from the south side, thus escaping the jam of the crowd.

The march off the field was from the northeast corner of the field past the stand where H. R. stood. While the McGill regiments were marching past the band played "Come Fill Your Glasses Up" and at the same time were given a hearty cheer by the crowd.

All the nearby trees, roofs and every available point of vantage was taken up, while cameras were in abundance everywhere.

The crowd on Park Avenue was so thickly packed that there was scarcely room for the four to march.

The return was made via Park Avenue, Sherbrooke and Metcalfe streets. Evidently the bootblacks made a harvest Tuesday night, for not a man came off the field without getting into the mud to the boot-tops. Moving pictures of the men were shown at the Imperial the latter end of the week.

The McGill men might well be proud to see their marching reproduced. Major Magee expressed himself as being well satisfied with the showing made by the regiment.

Lectures were called off for the afternoon, and that was largely responsible for the good turn-out.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE FOR WISCONSIN MEN

Students in Wisconsin educational institutions will not be disfranchised, for the bill for this purpose has been defeated. Its real purpose was to take the vote away from students at the State University. It provided that no students should be allowed to vote at an educational centre unless he was self-supporting; in this form the bill was declared unconstitutional.

TO SAVE BOSWELL'S HOUSE

Societies Are Trying to Prevent Razing of Famous Place.
New York Sun:—While the treasures of the National Gallery in London are being consigned to the cellar lest a German bomb dropped from the sky destroy them, the Society for the Protection of Ancient Buildings, the Society of the Antiquaries and the Art Workers Guild are striving by appeals to the public to prevent the demolition of the two houses, No. 55 and 56 Great Queen street, where Mr. James Boswell lived for several years and prepared his life of Dr. Samuel Johnson for publication. It was not in either of those houses, but in a house on Great Poland street, that Boswell died, a victim of his early and late excesses, at the age of 50, surviving the great man by eleven years.

NO TURNING AT OREGON

The board of regents at the University of Oregon has issued an order forbidding the sophomores to tub freshmen in troughs of the university farm.

With McGill Men At The Front

Lieut. Cyril G. Child, Sci. '11, who is at the front with the Division Cycle Co., Canadian Overseas Contingent, writes as follows to his father, James T. Child, superintendent, Rocky Mount-ains Park, Banff, Alberta:

France, Feb. 25, 1915.

We are now under fire. We left our billets three days ago, three platoons under my command and are attached to an English division, relieving some of the poor chaps who have been out here since August, and who are badly in need of a rest. I only got the wire to leave at 9:30 p.m., and had to leave the next morning at 7:00, and was rather proud of myself getting off on the second with Everall and Woodman, and their platoons. That night we were sent out to dig trenches just back of the firing line, and so we received our first "baptism of fire." I am sorry to say that one of my best men was knocked out in the first ten minutes by a German sniper, but am thankful to say that has been our only casualty. I cannot help ducking as the bullets whizz past, and was frightfully nervous the first night, but I am glad to say am as cool as a cucumber now, and the men, they are absolutely wonderful. They work like old hands, and I have been paid several compliments by the British officers on their behavior. The only danger is from these German snipers, whose aim is absolutely perfect, almost meaning the way they place shot after shot in exactly the same place. The only explanation I can find is that they train their rifles in a vice, so that they might all have to do is load and pull the trigger. However it is more chances if they make a hit, and so the danger is very slight.

They have had a splendid lot of Germans—the Saxons—in this part of the line—one of the English officers tells me that there has not a shot fired by either side for a whole month after Christmas. Both sides absolutely refused to fire at each other. It started like this, our fellows were surprised on Christmas Eve by suddenly seeing a row of lights along the parapets of the German trenches, which here are less than one hundred yards apart, at midnight. They, of course, thought there was a game on, and got all ready for an attack. Then the Germans lifted up hundreds of little Christmas trees. Then they showed themselves, and shouted out, "Don't shoot, keep your bullets for the Prussians." Then both sides came out of their trenches and shook hands, and for as long as the Saxons were there the Tommies absolutely refused to shoot.

We shall not be in very great danger unless they start shelling us, and I don't think they will do as I am pretty sure they are running out of ammunition, at least, if they are not short, they certainly do not waste as much as they used to.

Dr. George A. Warburton, of Charlottetown, P.E.I., has received another batch of intensely interesting letters from his son, Hugh C. Warburton, Arts '11, M.A., who is now in North Africa, fighting the Germans. Mr. Warburton is one of the island's Rhodes Scholars. After completing his course in Oxford, he was appointed Assistant Commissioner in Africa by the Colonial Secretary.

Only one of his letters is dated Bakundi, North Africa, December 6th, about two weeks after the death of his comrade, Glenn, Divisional Officer, in charge of Mutum Bin, who was shot by a sniper while on patrol duty in the bush along the German border.

Glenn's death left only three white men at Bakundi—a medical officer, a police officer, and Mr. Warburton. The British were greatly outnumbered around Bakundi, and were having a hard time of it. A reinforcement of West African Frontier force, with a field gun and two maxims, arrived, took Gazabu and Bell, and shelled Garbarbi, the German stronghold over the border. The reinforcements afterwards returned to Takumi, leaving only half a company at Bakundi to face an enemy several hundred strong. Mr. Warburton and the other two white men acting as base of supply.

The Resident, Mr. Fremantle, who passed through Bakundi recently, informed Mr. Warburton that when "this show is over," he was to go out with a police escort among the pagans on the other side of the Genna, among the hills, and settle down to a few months of assessment work. This will involve, incidentally, burning a few towns and dodging poisoned arrows. By the way, writes Mr. Warburton, the Germans at Gazabu left several man-traps, concealed pits with poisoned arrows in the bottom.

In regard to social life, Mr. Warburton stated that with the exception of three stations filled with very senior men, no white women are allowed in Northern Nigeria.

The next letter is dated also from Bakundi on December 18th, and he writes: "We are in about as tight a corner as one can possibly imagine. The bulk of our troops departed after shelling the Germans out of Gazabu, Bell and Garbarbi, leaving behind one officer and 30 men at Gazabu, eighteen valiant black police at Bakundi. Once the coast was clear the Germans, 150 strong, with two maxims, came back and chased the native police out of Gazabu."

The latter made a little fort nearby, and the next day Mr. Warburton marched out with his blacks to reinforce them. There was a "velvety engagement," but the British, outnumbered, were compelled to retire on Bakundi. "At the time of writing," said Mr. Warburton, "we are sitting down here praying for reinforcements, which are seven days away, and fully expecting the enemy to turn up at any moment."

Letter No. 3 is dated Bakundi, January 3rd. He states that after an anxious week the little British force was strengthened by the arrival of another company with two maxims. They chased the Germans out of the "No Man's Land," where all the trouble has been, and then marched off to Takumi, a hundred miles away.

"I suppose it will be the same thing over again," said Mr. Warburton. In a few days the Hun will learn that we are very weak, and will turn up, thirsty for gore. It will be another masterly retreat and wait for help. Of course, we are really a border outpost; our big forces (6,000 men with a naval brigade) are advancing very slowly from the south of the Kameruns. Our function in life is to potter round here, annoying the Huns until they come after us in force, when we are supposed to bring on 'em the last possible moment, and then retreat."

ART LECTURES CEASE APRIL 9

It has been announced by Acting Dean Walter, of the Faculty of Arts, that lectures in that Faculty for this session will cease on Friday, April 9th, instead of upon Tuesday, April 13th, as was originally announced in the Calendar. This resolution was passed at a meeting of the Faculty held on Friday last. It was understood that the action of the Faculty is based upon the recommendation made by the Arts Undergraduate Society held a week ago, to the effect that a week's time be given for preparation for the exams, without any lectures being held in that period. No change will be made in the date of the sessional examinations, which will commence upon Monday, April 19th.

Harrier Club Held Meeting

The semi-annual meeting of the Harrier Club was held last evening in Strathcona Hall. Considering the size of the club a fairly good number attended. Owing to the absence of the president, Captain Gerrie called the meeting to order and proceeded to the election of officers for the ensuing year, which resulted as follows: Hon. President—Dr. Macmillan; Vice-President—J. D. Moore, '17; Sec.-Treas.—T. W. MacDermot, '17; Captain—W. Antliff, '18; Arts Representative—J. A. Lalanne, '17; Science Representative—J. E. McLeod, '17; Med. Representative—S. R. McCreary, '19.

It was also moved and seconded that Macdonald College should have a representative on the Harrier Club committee.

This resolution was adopted and Skinner, '17, was chosen for the position. The question as to the reviving of the old cross-country run was then brought up and discussed at some length, the suggestion being that either an inter-faculty or inter-collegiate meet be held prior to the inter-collegiate meet. It was also suggested that the club should try to get into competition with outside clubs in this city. As competition was what has always been wanting at McGill this ought to be a valuable asset to the team, without incurring any extra expense. It was then moved that the secretary, in behalf of the club, send a vote of thanks to Mr. Bailey in appreciation for his services rendered during the past season.

The meeting then adjourned.

MEETING B.W.F. CLUB POSTPONED

The annual meeting of the Boxing, Wrestling and Fencing Club called for the 18th instant failed to materialize, through inability to secure a quorum. The election of officers and other matters in connection with the annual meeting will be held next autumn upon the re-opening of the University.

Stay in one place and you get pot-bound. It is the struggle to adapt yourself to a new environment that causes growth. This is about all there is in college education—a change of environment.

Architectural Ass'n Meeting

The Architectural Association held a well attended meeting last Saturday morning, when the officers for the coming year were elected. They were as follows: President—P. Booth. Vice-President—L. H. - Second Year—Jenks.
- First Year—Beveridge.

GRADUATE OF '89 CLASS SUCCUMBS TO INJURIES

Dr. A. A. McLehlan, Med. '89, of Summerside, P.E.I., who was injured by a fall from a street car on St. Catherine street, died in the Western Hospital on Saturday last. Dr. McLehlan was prominent in Island affairs and one of those instrumental in the establishment of the Summerside Hospital. He was also medical health officer of the town.

VARSITY STUDENT KILLED WITH "PATS."

Lieut. Frederick Laurens Eardley-Willmot, of the Patricias, who was killed in action March 19, was a student at the University of Toronto, and completed his first year there. He was the son of Col. A. Eardley-Willmot, of the Royal Artillery.

SIR CHARLES P. DAVIDSON KEEPS HONORARY TITLE

The King has approved of the retention of the title "Honorable" by Sir Charles Peers Davidson, Law '63, on his retirement from the office of Chief Justice of the Superior Court of the province.

1915 RHODES SCHOLAR AMONG THE ENLISTED

Morley Loughheed, B.A., the 1915 Rhodes scholar from Manitoba University, has enlisted in the Army Medical Corps at Winnipeg and will leave for the front with it. He will take up his work at Oxford after the war.

SIR THOMAS RODDICK IS NOW RECOVERING

Sir Thomas G. Roddick, Med. '68, former Dean of the Faculty of Medicine and ex-president of the British Medical Association, is rapidly recovering from his recent illness. Sir Thomas expects to be confined to his residence for a week or ten days.

President J. A. Gilmore and a party of Federal League men inspected the Newark Federal League grounds Saturday and said that he was well pleased with the outlook in that city. He said he expected the Kansas City trouble would be settled to-day.

YEAR '17 WILL HOLD MEETING

The 1916 Annual will be issued in a few days and the class of 1917 has now to organize the Business and Editorial Boards, which will have to commence work on the opening of the fall term. This is one of the most important events of the Junior year. A class meeting will be held this afternoon in Strathcona Hall at 5:15 p.m., and it is hoped a large turnout will be present. If the meeting decides that the class will be able to finance the project class meetings will be held in the different faculties, at which class representatives will be elected to the Editorial and Business Boards.

English Club For Next Year

Organization for the proposed student club to be established in connection with the Department of English is well under way, and it is likely that within a few more weeks the club will be placed upon a substantial basis for work next session. Some thirty students, not including those taking graduate work in English, have offered to join the club, whose limit in membership has not been decided. A meeting will probably be held shortly, at which the election of officers will take place.

While the proposed club will deal in a general way with any matters which may arise for discussion in connection with work in the classroom, it has been suggested that it should pay particular attention to modern tendencies in the drama, and endeavor to secure interest in this phase of the Department's work. The meetings will be most informal, and will take the form of discussions. Leading actors and actresses, as well as prominent journalists or others, who may visit Montreal, will be asked to address the club during the session.

W. G. CRUIKSHANK, LAW '73 DIES IN ROCHESTER, MINN.

W. G. Cruikshank, K.C., long a legal practitioner in Montreal and a graduate in Law of 1872, died on Tuesday last at Rochester, Minn., where he had been under treatment. Mr. Cruikshank was in his 74th year of age, and was unmarried. His classmates at McGill were late Hon. Dennis Barry, late Alphonse David, Duncan McCormick, K.C., Montreal; Prof. W. deM. Marler, Montreal; and C. A. Nutting, K.C., Waterloo, Que.

A TALE OF HARVARD AND THE WAR

As a more or less direct result of the European conflict, the Harvard Co-op. reports a decrease of $10,000 for the last six months. This unfavorable showing has been due to the prevention of the importation of foreign books. Another reason is found in the fact that the normal amount of furniture has not been sold, because the rooms in the new freshman dormitories are fully equipped. As a result of the depression, the plans for a new building are abandoned for the time being.

This Week At The Play Houses

THE PRINCESS

The Princess Musical Comedy company appeared to good advantage last night in "Pretty Miss Brown." The plot is scarcely as flimsy as is usual in an entertainment of this nature and the parts were taken very well. Mr. Burton as "Hummingtop," the much married husband, and Miss Dorothy Maynard in the title role, were especially good. Miss Brown also acted well and her rendering of "Tennessee Moon" was one of the hits of the evening. Mr. Bowers as Ralph Ormerod made a good showing and was well received by the audience. The chorus, with one or two exceptions, failed to give the support the principals deserved. At times the singing was weak and was almost drowned by the music.

On the whole, however, the performance was one of the best that has appeared at the Princess this season and deserved all the applause which they received. As usual, the majority of the audience, including several officers in uniform, left in a hurry, without waiting for the conclusion of the National Anthem.

THE ORPHEUM

The headliner at the Orpheum this week is Bessie Clayton, assisted by Lester Sheehan and the Clayton Sextette, in three dances, "The Past," "The Present" and "The Future." These included the Gavotte of 1830, the Tango, and Maxixe and the Clayton Fox Trot. Between the dances the Sextette played some excellent music, chiefly of the syncopated variety.

The weekly nut turn was a double this week. Ryan and Lee in a comedy skit, "You've Spoiled It," which kept the house laughing for twenty minutes. Walter Leroy, Emily Layton and Co. presented a short sketch in which the chief interest centers in the efforts of an Irish widower to propose to a widow. Carlo and Noli, late stars of "Naughty Marietta," have a singing turn in which they show off a pair of very good voices to the best advantage. Marie Fenton sang well and Billy Wells brings out an astounding amount of patter in a short time.

Kurtis Educated Roosters open the bill and the Welling Revering Troupe of Comic Cyclists close it. The Hearst Selig news pictorial brings to a close an entertainment well up to the Orpheum standard.

THE GAYETY

The well-known "Watson Sisters" and their show excelled itself this week at the Gayety.

The burlesque is in two acts and is entitled "Morocco Bound." The first scene is that of a singing academy and with it the chorus and leaders blend to a nicety.

The female leaders are the Watson Sisters, one as a mother and the other as a daughter, Miss Mable Mahlum as their servant and Qumder, a maiden from Morocco, all have excellent voices as well as good looks.

Of the male leaders, Ben Pierce as Herman Pickle is the best and his humorous songs and face bring down the house on various occasions. The next is Lew Williams as Izzy Abrams, who acts the part of the Jew very well. After him comes Jack McGowan, as Jack Alden, and whose voice is a great feature of the show.

In the first act the first song to me a hit is "I'm a Nut," by Pickle, where he gets some of the chorus to sing his little song for him. The next one is called "Youngsters of the Navy," by the maid, and this has a patriotic strain and was encored time and again.

The second act was a scene in a Moorish harem and the scenery blending with the clothing and faces of the chorus, gain much applause. The "Watson Sisters" go well together in some of their catchy tunes, while the male quartette was brought back again and again to give their simple but harmonious tunes.

As a summary the whole show, scenery, chorus, both in beauty and singing, and leaders worked well together and gave the best show seen in Montreal this season.

Soccer Club Held Meeting

The Soccer enthusiasts held a meeting last Friday week, at 8:15 p.m., and a plan of campaign was decided on. The following men were then elected: President—McPherson, Sci. '18.

Vice-Pres.—Johnson, Arts '17.

Sec.-Treas.—Hale, Sci. '18.

Representatives:—

Science—Hale, '18.

Arts—Treble, '17.

Medicine—Carter, '18.

Theology—Clarke, '17.

Much business was discussed, and if everything goes well, McGill will have the best Soccer Club of the Canadian Universities. The executive are trying to obtain a grant from the Students' Council and if this is brought about, the Council will have one more championship to its name. The material for next year is excellent and it is to be arranged to have soccer matches at camp so as to discover material for the team, so anybody interested will get a chance, because McGill does not want to be the only University on this continent without a soccer team.

SUNDAY'S STYLE SATISFIES STUDENTS.

The Rev. William A. Sunday addressed two crowded meetings at Princeton this week, and received a reception which he expressed as being one of the most gratifying of his career. Disregarding theological questions, he appealed for Christian morality and life in his characteristically vivid manner. He spoke under the auspices of the Seminary, as President Hibben declined to give the use of a university building for the service.

WHY MADE IN CANADA?

TO the uninformed, who cannot understand the necessity and advantage of the Made In Canada movement, we commend the following:

For years the Canadian people have been importing from the factories of Foreign Countries between Six Hundred and Seven Hundred Million Dollars worth of merchandise each year, much of these importations consisting of the manufactured products of steel, iron, wood and cotton and various raw materials in which Canada abounds. While these importations were taking place, many of the Canadian mills and factories, in which is invested vast capital, have been totally or partially idle. Canadian workmen were on short time, while the employees of foreign factories were working over time to supply the requirements of the Canadian people.

WHERE THE MONEY CAME FROM.

The important and critical consideration in the circumstances, is the fact that the Canadian people, while their own factories and workmen have been idle, have been borrowing money in England to pay for their importations from foreign countries.

Canada has been borrowing in England in the neighborhood of Four Hundred Million Dollars a year.

The war has, for the present, curtailed this Country's borrowing opportunities.

Leading English economists and financiers have pointed out the logical way for Canada to meet the situation.

Their advice is to curtail imports; manufacture in Canada much of the merchandise hitherto imported, thus retaining in the country a great amount of capital and giving employment to Canadian workmen.

They also deem it prudent for Canada to increase agricultural production. The substitution of Canadian-made products for say fifty per cent. of previous annual importations, and the doubling of Canadian agricultural production, with a consequent increase of Canadian exports, would be a highly remunerative and advantageous solution of the situation.

WHAT MADE GERMANY.

The New York Commercial and Financial World of December 5-14, says:

Probably the greatest development ever made by any country in the same space of time was made by the German Empire, following the termination of the Franco-Prussian war. Its industrial growth in that period is nothing sort of marvelous,—due to one cause alone, and that is the fostering by the government and the individual of the growth of anything pertaining to manufactured products "Made in Germany."

Now, the mighty industrial fabric built in Germany after years of patient toil, the fostering care of governmental policies and the expenditure of millions, is about to totter into ruin.

The place formerly occupied by this mighty Empire can and is being occupied to-day to a degree by the Dominion of Canada. Blessed with a plenitude of natural resources there is no reason why her industrial leaders should not take full advantage of the conditions and on a solid foundation build a commercial empire which will very likely equal that which the German people are to-day losing so rapidly.

Already the more farsighted manufacturers have grasped the idea and there is a concerted effort being made, and the "Made in Canada" idea has gotten a firm hold on the people. In the short space of two months much more has been accomplished than ever was done in Germany in the beginning of its industrial growth.

Newspapers have gotten out special "Made in Canada" editions, manufacturers have featured "Made in Canada" products and even the retailers have special sale days and exhibits of the same tenor. Every producer of saleable articles is taking more and more advertising space and there is a widespread campaign of education to the masses showing the great advantage of using the home-made products, as well as their superiority in many lines.

As a result many plants which were running slack two months ago are now running overtime and others preparing to do so. Two months ago there was a dearth of advertising and to-day the advertising solicitor is a welcome caller at the office of the progressive Canadian producer.

We have frequently commented on the "Made in Canada" propaganda, as it marks the beginning of one of the great epochs of Canadian history, and we take occasion to again refer to its great importance.

Reports from the Canadian northwest indicate that the year 1915 will be the greatest agriculturally that the country has ever seen. It is estimated that next year there will be from 25 to 50 per cent. more land under cultivation than ever before, and the consequent increase in grain for market will be estimated, represent an increase of a hundred million dollars a year in the wealth of the Dominion, from agriculture alone.

Owing to the impetus given to the Canadian people to purchase merchandise "Made in Canada," much of the money hitherto sent to foreign countries, will remain in Canada, giving increased employment to Canadian people, adding to the nation's wealth, and adjusting the trade balance.

Prosperity is preparing an invasion of Canada.

PLATFORM:

As to my platform, I would say that it is not my intention to change the routine of business or proceedings of the already well established and conducted Undergraduate Medical Society.

I feel honored to receive this nomination for President of this organization and should it be my privilege to be elected, I shall endeavor in every way to carry on the business of the society and to further its interest in every way.

I do not accept this nomination without full realization of the present conditions, and that the society will not only need the guidance of the President and Executive, but also the hearty co-operation of every member of the Undergraduate Society; but all working together is an advantage to any society, for in unity there is strength.

We are not only losing many Doctors and Professors whose support is so much needed in an organization of this kind, but a great many of the student members who have always taken a keen interest in what is today one of the best organized and most carefully managed societies at McGill.

Should I be the fortunate candidate I hope I shall have it in my power to carry on the work in as efficient a manner as Mr. Knolls and his predecessors have done.

PLATFORM:

In aspiring to the honor of the Presidency of the Medical Society, it is not without the full recognition and realization of the important duties and responsibilities connected therewith and the desire to place the Society from every standpoint second to none on the Continent.

If elected, my paramount aim will be to bring the Faculty and Society into closer touch, to make the meetings as interesting as possible, both from the standpoint of educational value and entertainment. It would be my endeavor to bring before the Society the best procurable speakers both among our own Professors and from outside talent, on live and interesting topics of the Medical and Surgical world.

Again, I would strive to arrange the meetings that they would be of as vital importance to the Freshman as Senior; and to this end would introduce "Year Nights"; also to establish prize competitions for the lower years, as the present system gives these men little or no recognition.

I would also do all in my power for the convenience of the Students, instituting an efficient supervision of reading room requirements, and accommodation in student rooms at the hospitals, in all observing that careful expenditure necessary to keep the Society on a sound financial basis.

PLATFORM:

In reply to your request for my platform as a candidate for the presidency of the Medical Society, I may say that, in all fairness to the members of the society I must refrain from making any definite plans. The situation is such at McGill this year, and will undoubtedly be next year, that the most carefully planned platform may have to be altered or abandoned. Rather, therefore, than make definite statements which might prove to be rash later on, I promise, if elected, to serve the society to the very best of my ability, and devote to its work all of my time which it may require.

I consider it a very great honor to be a candidate for this important position against three such worthy men as Messrs. Affleck, Hartman and Miller, and I wish to formally thank those men who nominated me.

Medicine 1917 Members Tender Farewell to Enlisting Classmates

The Union was the scene of great merry-making yesterday when the class of Medicine '17 tendered to their departing soldier-classmates a farewell banquet.

The excellent good-fellowship and class-spirit that have come to be associated with the class of Med. '17 were everywhere in evidence. Every member of the class was present and every one added to the merry din that continually reverberated along the long tables. Such was the prevalent joyous atmosphere, but deep down in the hearts of every one was the ever dominant feeling of farewell. Those who had felt the call of their country and had responded so willingly were nevertheless finding it extremely difficult to break away from their comrades and fellow students, while the those guard although proud of their soldier-classmates, felt that a great vacancy was creeping into their lives.

After a hearty dinner the toasts were then drunk. Chairman Desaulniers proposed the toast to the King. He then called upon Frank Scully, who proposed the toast "our guests." Mr. Scully expressed the sentiments of the entire class when he touched upon the brotherly feeling that they would always have the sympathy of their brother-students in all the hardships in which they would undoubtedly be called upon to face.

George Blisset responded to the toast and on behalf of those who were going to the front said that although they were going to distant realms, nevertheless they would always look back with the greatest pleasure to the days when they associated with their old classmates. He was sure also that those who remained at home found it their duty to do so and that they would still continue to uphold the good name of the class.

The next toast was that to the McGill Hospital, which was proposed by Harcourt Churchill. He briefly outlined the great work that had been undertaken. And he was sure that those members who were taking part in it would do their work fittingly and credit to McGill University and to the British Empire at large.

A. C. Farlinger responded to this and recited a piece of poetry which carried the thoughts of every one present to the battle field and to duty. Chairman Desaulniers on behalf of the class then extended an unanimous and hearty vote of thanks to L. C. Montgomery, who has been the president of the class during the present session, and who has now felt the call to duty.

In reply Mr. Montgomery said that the credit was due largely to the excellent and hard-working executive which he had. Furthermore, he was indeed very sorry to leave such good comrades, which was just like leaving home.

The banquet then came to an end and all the members proceeded down to the Orpheum, where they had a block of orchestra seats reserved. Thanks to Daddy Lamb he had the boys in the yells only between the acts and their conduct was a credit to the University.

In all the class has now 25 members enlisted for active service. They are: G. W. Blisset, J. S. Brown, E. M. Busky, A. N. Chisholm, H. A. Desbriais, E. H. W. Elkington, A. C. Farlinger, L. J. Garneau, J. A. A. Hooper, W. A. Hunt, M. W. LeBel, R. A. McArthur, T. W. McKenzie, F. G. Miller, L. C. Montgomery, W. S. Parsons, C. F. Roman, B. W. Skinner, C. J. Stewart, R. R. Struthers, P. S. Tennant, C. B. Thingle, C. E. Wienke, H. S. Wright, L. T. C. Whitley.

The committee in charge of yesterday's proceedings was composed of Messrs. G. Desaulniers, A. S. Lomb, Ed. Lunney, H. B. Church, H. E. Gokey, Frank Scully.

FOREST PRODUCTS LAB. OPENS SOON

Practically all the equipment of the Canadian Forest Products Laboratories is installed and the formal opening of the plant, situated at 700 University street, will probably take place during Convocation week, about May 12. There will probably be present at the opening Hon. Dr. Roche, Minister of the Interior; R. H. Campbell, Director of Forestry, under whose jurisdiction the Forest Product Laboratories are organized, as well as a number of other Government officials from Ottawa, representatives from the University, Governors and the different Faculties. Prominent men in the pulp and paper, lumber wood preservation, and other wood preservation industries will also be invited to be present.

The experimental paper machine is entirely in place. The finishing touches are being put on the two heaters and most of the other equipment. No experiments have as yet been carried on, but most of the apparatus has been tried out and found satisfactory. The Government has passed the full appropriation for the laboratories, commencing April 1st, 1915, so that the research work should go ahead with renewed vigor. A number of additions will be made in the near future; most of these men will probably be McGill graduates.

There should be for the coming year 25 and 26 men devoting their entire time to experimental work in wood products.

Mr. Warburton's company had a hard time since the war began, the casualties amounting to nearly 50 per cent. He says that he expects to hang on there until the war is over. It is a pretty tough job, but he enjoys it and is keeping fairly fit, all things considered.

W. A. Gilmore, of Brockville, Ontario, has received a letter from his son, Dr. W. Norman Gilmore, M.D., dated Johannesburg, South Africa, February 10. Dr. Gilmore, who is serving with the Mounted Rifles, said his regiment was leaving that day for German West Africa, going by way of Cape Town, a trip that he did not expect would be completed until February 28. Recent despatches tell of the Germans being routed in West Africa on February 29, so that Dr. Gilmore was likely a participant in that fray, under the direction of General Botha. The doctor also writes that since hostilities commenced Botha and his army have taken 10,000 Germans who are now being held as prisoners of war.

Private W. B. Scott, Law 12, who was announced in recent despatches as being seriously wounded, has had his right eye extracted, according to later advice received from Rouen. The operation has been successfully performed, and Private Scott is still in the hospital at Rouen.

Upon the outbreak of the war, Mr. Scott, who is in the legal firm of Lafleur, MacDougall, Macfarlane and Pope, endeavored to obtain a commission in the First Contingent, but not having previously acquired the necessary military qualifications, he was unable to do so, and enlisted as a private in the 12th Battalion and was promoted to lance-sergeant while at Salisbury Plain.

When the First Contingent left England for the front, the 12th Battalion remained behind as reinforcements, and at Mr. Scott's request he was transferred to the 14th Battalion (Royal Montreal Regiment), leaving his rank and joining again as a private.

Advice received by a friend at Quebec convey the information that Prof. Rene du Roure, late associate professor of French at McGill, is now a prisoner of the Germans in Mayence. Prof. du Roure was wounded in both legs while covering a retreat of his regiment in the French Army, and was captured by the Germans. He was removed to the military hospital at Saabrücken, and has now been transferred to Mayence.

Amongst the list of Canadians killed is the name of John H. Rother. Jack was a member of Science 18 for his freshman year and afterwards was employed by the C. P. R. Irrigation Dept. in Alberta. When war broke out he was one of the first to enlist and having had previous training he was accepted by the Princess Pats and was promoted to the rank of lance-corporal. Jack was very popular with his classmates and his many friends at McGill will miss him greatly, although they are proud of the way he has given his life to his country.

Word has also been received by one of the members of Science 15, from "Ham" Johnson, who is with the 21st Battery. "Ham" writes that the men are quartered in barracks at Shorncliffe, where they are undergoing final training before being sent to the front. He states that the McGill men with the battery are all in fine health and spirits and sends regards to their old friends at McGill, from himself, "Monty" Montgomery, "Murray" Robertson, Ernie McIntosh and Pringle Seath.
